

Courses in MPH's advanced curriculum are designed to align with the mission and core values of the school. Students' learning experiences reflect the purpose of an MPH education. In contrast, AP courses are shaped by the College Board's mission to generate nationally normed courses that meet conventional notions of rigor.

